

The Simple Sorcerer

Inspired by John Montroll's Grass

By Perry Bailey

Placed in the Public Domain
1996 by Author

1

Begin colored side up. Fold
a white waterbomb base.
See page 7 for details.

2

Fold the front raw edge up to the sides of the model, while folding one flap to the left.

3

Fold the new raw edge up like in step 2,
but this time fold two flaps over to the right.

4

Valley-fold and unfold
through all layers.

5

Pleat the front flap.
Repeat behind.

6

Outside-reverse-fold the flap up along the existing creases.

Perform a closed sink on the model. If you don't know what a closed sink is, an ordinary old mountain fold will suffice.

Rotate the model 120°.

Valley-fold the top flap down.

Squash-fold.

Rabbit-ear.

Bring the bottom front flap up while swinging the middle flap to the left.

Now it's time to fold the arms down. Using the existing crease, pleat on the front layer only. Repeat behind. Fold up on both sides of the model's base so that it can stand up. Widen the head by swinging up the left flap.

The Sorcerer is complete!

Modified slightly and rediagrammed by Jeremy Shafer Public Domain 1997